ACIFC Demonstrates Concrete Industrial Flooring Expertise

The Association of Concrete Industrial Flooring Contractors (ACIFC) held a successful meeting earlier this month which was attended by over 30 members to provide an update on the key technical projects being led by ACIFC this year. Raising standards in the concrete industrial flooring industry is a key objective for ACIFC and the meeting provided the ideal platform to share the wealth of knowledge and experience held by members.

ACIFC Technical Committee Chairman Kevin Dare gave an overview of the progress on updating the 'Good Concrete Guide 5 - Composite Concrete Slabs on Steel Decking' which is due to be published as a Concrete Society Technical Report later this year. He also presented a new Steel Fibre Testing project which aims to provide independently verified data for fibres commonly used in industrial slabs. Tom Hancock, Technical Committee member, concluded the day's technical presentations with the latest news on a new technical guide on Repairs and Maintenance currently in development.

ACIFC Chairman Colin Shephard said:

"ACIFC and its members are committed to improving standards in floor technology to the benefit of their clients by developing technical guidance and sharing best practice. The key technical projects that will be delivered over the next year demonstrate that we are leading the way on behalf of the industry and will cement our place as the recognised organisation for Specialist Contractors involved in concrete industrial floors."

ACIFC will be bringing together the concrete industrial flooring with a Gala Dinner later this year. Providing a unique networking opportunity, this inaugural event on Thursday 8 September at the luxury Abbey Hotel in Worcestershire will include a champagne reception and fabulous three course dinner with entertainment.
